

Instant Healing of Double Pneumonia by Stephen Jeffreys

There are so many stories of physical healing that it is difficult to know which to tell. Little Mair Morgan, aged about two and a half, was dying, so the doctor said, of double pneumonia. Her parents knew about divine healing, but had not faith enough to ask the Pastor to come. They had, however, faith enough to pray for guidance. They prayed that if they were to ask for divine healing God would send some one from the mission. Soon there was a knock at the door, and Pastor, and five other men with him, came in. They had not heard that the child was ill, but had come on another matter altogether.

They anointed her and prayed, and she was immediately well. Next morning two doctors came to see her, and found her playing on the hearthrug. They were amazed. They said to the mother, "What has been here?"

Mrs. Morgan answered, "Doctor, need you ask?" The doctors both turned and went from the house. There was nothing left for them to do.
